Over 500 here for Alumni Weekend

Gould alumni were blessed with a splendid fall weekend, highlighted by tributes to Olympic marathon gold medalist Joan Benoit Samuelson and former teacher and ski coach Paul Kailey. Over 500 showed up for the annual get-together.

Mrs. Samuelson provided a great thrill for Gould cross-country team members and alumni by joining them in Saturday's annual Alumni Fun Run, running slightly off her usual pace due to being an expectant mother, but cruising comfortably up and down the hills of the Gould cross-country course nonetheless.

Mrs. Samuelson was honored by the Alumni Association Saturday morning, receiving the Nathaniel Tuckerman True Award for her many years of service to Maine and the world community.

Kenneth Remsen '67 gave the award, recounting Mrs. Samuelson's personal dedication in sports as well as her selfless volunteer work with young people. In accepting the award, she noted that Mr. Remsen failed to mention that he had coached her in alpine skiing over 10 years ago, and was partially responsible for her beginning running. She praised both alumni and Gould faculty for their dedication to young people, whom she called "today's most valuable resource."

Recycling starts at West Paris

Starting this week West Paris residents will be able to recycle their household trash, thus saving the Town part of the expense of hauling trash to Norridgewock and paying tipping fees there.

The Board of Selectmen has arranged for recycling containers to be placed at the town's transfer station. The containers will be for cardboard, newspapers, glass bottles and plastic milk containers. The selectmen request that bottles and containers be rinsed out before depositing them in the recycling bins.

The bins are being provided by Recycleables Unlimited, which has purchased the former garnet grinding mill in town.

The recycling company will sort the items collected in its bins and ship the materials, via rail or truck, to processing plants.

Foliage Flotilla floats down river on Columbus Day

The Third Annual Fall Foliage Flotilla, sponsored by the Friends of the Androscoggin, will be held on Columbus Day, Oct. 9.

The event will feature a family outing on the river, starting at New's Landing in West Bethel and finishing at the Rte. 2 picnic area. Put-in is scheduled for noon; arrival at the take-out point should be around 3 p.m.

Preceding the Flotilla, the Friends of the Androscoggin will dedicate the Schools access site, which has been donated by Eva Schools in memory of her late husband. The dedication ceremony will be held at the Schools site, which is at the foot of the Ferry Road, off the Northwest Bethel Road, at 11 a.m. Those planning to participate in the Flotilla are asked to put in at New's Landing in West Bethel and paddle across to the Schools site. Those wishing to attend the dedication only should drive to the site.

For further information, contact Friends President Steve Wight, or Bernie Michaud, who is handling arrangements for the put-in.

Hike/Walk/Run Saturday at Sunday River Skiway

The Mahoonie Arts Council's second annual Hike/Walk/Run up Sunday River Skiway's Three Mile Trail will be held Saturday, Oct. 7, starting at 9:30 a.m. The event is a fundraiser to help bring arts programs to the local schools and communities. It is open to hikers and runners of all ages.

The $15 ($40 per family of four) registration fee includes a ski lift back to the base area after the climb, a BBQ lunch, music entertainment by folk guitarist David Dodson and $15 worth of Sunday River ticket vouchers. Rossignol skis will be awarded to the first male and female finishers and other awards will be given in various age categories.

The first 100 registrants for the race will receive a long-sleeved cotton T-shirt. Registration forms are available at Prim's Pharmacy, or by calling 624-2666. Racers may register the day of the race at the South Ridge Lodge between 8 and 9 a.m.

The Mahoonie Hike/Walk/Run is also part of the "Peak to Peak" series sponsored by Columbia Valley. Other peak races include Sugarloaf and Shawnee Peak (on Oct. 15). For more information, call 237-2000.

HERE'S JOANIE! Olympic marathon gold medalist Joan Benoit Samuelson was the first woman to finish the 3.14-mile fun run at Gould Academy Saturday morning. The Freeport resident, who is 5½-months pregnant with her second child, easily outdistanced all the women, and most of the men, over the hilly cross-country course. Later in the day, Mrs. Samuelson was honored with the Gould Alumni Association's Nathaniel Tuckerman True Award, given to someone who has made significant contributions to the world community.

Sewer plant repair problem again tossed to town meeting

Bethel voters will have another chance to decide what to do about the town's ailing sewer plant next Tuesday night when they meet in a Special Town Meeting, to convene at the high school, at 7 p.m.

The warrant for the meeting will offer voters three options for paying for the emergency sewer plant repairs proposed by the selectmen. The emergency repairs, originally estimated to cost $480,000, are now estimated to cost $860,000. Since Town Meeting already authorized the borrowing of $480,000 last February, the selectmen are now asking for authorization to borrow another $380,000.

When the question was put before Town Meeting two weeks ago, the warrant article specified that repayment of the new loan would be from the pockets of the 422 sewer users. Most of the nearly 150 people attending the meeting were sewer users and they overwhelmingly defeated the article.

Opinions expressed by the sewer users at the meeting and thereafter showed they felt they were already being overtaxed for what they consider an asset of the entire town. The users have already been told they would have to repay the $480,000 loan agreed to by Town Meeting in February; they are also already paying the remaining $200,000 from the $225,000 loan used to build the plant. Further, they objected to non-users ordering them to accept additional debt.

The three funding alternatives being presented to voters next Tuesday include the failed article (by which only the sewer users would repay the proposed additional borrowing), an article whereby all taxpayers would pay a share of the proposed new borrowing, and an article whereby the repayments of the proposed new borrowing would be split 50/50 between users and the general tax.

Inn and restaurant proposed for Mayville

An Ogunquit inn owner has plans to turn the Dorothy Fader property, in the Mayville section of Bethel, into an inn and restaurant. The property is situated between the Douglas Bed and Breakfast and the Restay Motor Inn.

A sketch plan of the proposal was presented to the Bethel Planning Board last Wednesday night by consultant Billy Stowell. The sketch shows the house converted into an inn with eight guest rooms, while the carriage house would be converted into a 40-seat restaurant. The sketch also indicates that the barn would be used for retail space.

The inn—if the plan comes to fruition—is to be called the Snow Goose Inn, Mr. Stowell said. He plans to have a formal site plan review application to present to the board at its next meeting. Also discussed last Wednesday night was a revised plan by Joe Galdis for his proposed Bethel Depot, at the site of the present Martha's Restaurant. Mr. Galdis' revised plan has eliminated the earlier-proposed three-story structure. "The original can't go through," he said. "It was too ambitious a plan."

The new plan would only utilize the existing 2,000-square-foot building and would convert it from a restaurant into an antique shop. The board will discuss See PLANNING BOARD, page 3

DEP watching re-licensing of James River mill

The state Department of Environmental Protection is watching closely the licensing procedure currently underway between the James River mill in Berlin, N.H., and the federal Environmental Protection Agency, which is the agency that must re-license the mill. The mill's license to discharge pollutants into the Androscoggin River above the Maine-New Hampshire line expired last month.

The DEP's Michael Kuhns, in the agency's licensing division, told The Citizen the Berlin mill owners must understand that "discharging pollutants into a river is a privilege, not a right."

Mr. Kuhns said he expects the mill to use the best practical technology to clean up its discharges. What the DEP is especially concerned with in the mill discharges is cancer-causing dioxin, color-odor-foam, and oxygen-depleting waste products. (New Hampshire anglers have been warned by state health officials to limit consumption of fish caught in the river below the mill to one a year because of the high level of dioxin in the mill's discharge.)

The James River mill is not the only paper mill whose expired license the DEP is looking at. The Boise mill, in Rumford, and the JP mill, at Jay, have both been discharging into the Androscoggin River for the past three to four years with expired licenses.

The agency's licensing division has been working with mill officials to work out new license criteria, Mr. Kuhns said. Last week, staffers in the division briefed members of the Board of Environmental Protection on the thorniest issue: the amount of dioxin to be permitted in each mill's discharge. Mr. Kuhns said an agreement between the agency and the mills is probably still three to four months away on this issue.

The federal government's EPA, for its part, is closely watching the negotiations underway between the DEP and Maine's paper mills, to get some idea of what limits will be placed on this state's mills. Maine, unlike New Hampshire, licenses its own mills. In the Granite State, the EPA is responsible for issuing the discharge permits.

The State of Maine has some clout in the issue of dissolved oxygen, on the other hand, has seemingly been settled, as has the issue of color, odor and foam. But Mr. Kuhns said this last issue—which was the focus of a battle last winter between the Democrat-controlled Legislature and Republican Governor John McKernan—could become thorny once again if the Legislature steps in before the licenses are issued.

Everett Mayberry was appointed a planning board alternate. The state Department of Transportation has completed its survey of Andover bridges and has found the one over Black Brook to be in poor condition. They rated it a two-star bridge, which means it must be repaired or closed. The department will be consulted about suggestions for its reconstruction.

Historic District could double in size if proposal is approved

When the Maine Historic Preservation Commission meets later this month it will consider a proposal that would double the size of the Broad Street Historic District, in Bethel.

The proposal was drafted by local historian Stan Howe, of Bethel, and local architect Jim Yarnell, of Upton. It suggests that the buildings on Church Street, including the two churches, many of the Gould Academy buildings, and the entire Kimball Park, be given recognition on the National Register of Historic Places.

That district was recognized by the Cable may arrive in Andover by winter, or it may not, board told

State Cable has told the Andover Board of Selectmen the town may be wired for cable by November or December, if the weather holds out. Otherwise it will not be installed until the spring—still within their 18 month contract. The cable company, headquartered in Augusta, recently got the cable as far as Roxbury. Meanwhile, CMP has been in Andover reinforcing their poles for the installation of cable.

At last Thursday night's meeting, the selectmen voted that Dog Officer Ray Robert be relieved of his position due to non-performance of duties. They will advertise for a replacement.

The selectmen turned down the bid of Leon Simmons for the driveway snow plowing contract. His bid of $5,999—the only bid received—was rejected because it is 50 percent higher than last year. Bids are again open and will be advertised. An advertisement will also be placed for a highway department employee to work full time from December to March, with the possibility of full time employment after that.

Census takers are being sought by the town. The pay is $7 an hour plus mileage. Anyone who is qualified can apply at the town office.

federal government in 1977 and consists of 27 buildings. The extension of the district to Church Street would bring an additional 27 buildings into the district, according to Kirk Molney, architectural historian with the Maine Historic Preservation Commission.

Mr. Molney said the extension of the present district would start at the former Edgewood Country Store and go as far as Hanscom Hall.

Three particularly interesting historic developments are included in the proposed extension, Mr. Molney said. The Gould buildings reflect the community's early interest in education; the churches reflect the expansion of the community to Bethel Hill; while Kimball Park is an example of early inhabitants' need for public open space—the park.

He noted that Kimball Park developed rather quickly after the railroad arrived in Bethel in 1851. Kimball purchased the property in 1856 and built his home (one half of the attached house) in 1857. The last houses to be built in the park were completed in 1880.

Should the Maine Historic Preservation Commission agree with its staff that the Broad Street Historic District should be extended down Church Street, the proposal would then be sent to the National Park Service, in Washington, for final review.

If the buildings in the area are accepted by the Park Service as of historic significance and are listed in the National

MCI loses tax fight with Town of Andover

MCI—the successor to COMSAT at the Andover earth station site—lost its bid to have its town property taxes reduced.

The state Board of Property Tax Review ruled last month that MCI was not entitled to appeal the town's tax bill because it had failed to provide the town's tax assessor requested information on which to base a tax bill.

Andover Selectwoman Jane Rich said that prior to 1988 the town had simply accepted COMSAT officials' own evaluation of the property. Based on those evaluations, the 1987 assessment on equipment (personal property) at the site was $8,975,000.

After MCI purchased the site, that company submitted a figure of $500,000 as "just value" for the equipment. Mrs. Rich said the selectmen were unwilling to accept that figure and hired a professional tax assessor, Michael Austin, of Brunswick, to conduct an appraisal of the property.

Mr. Austin told the state board, during

Opinions

Maybe it's time to reconsider

Sept. 30 came and went, and the sky did not fall. Neither did the State Department of Environmental Protection begin to fine the Town $100 a day.

The threat of $100-a-day fine is contained in the department's draft consent agreement with the Town on how to clean up the sewer mess. The draft states, in part: "Bethel shall pay to the Treasurer, State of Maine... for each day after September 30, 1989, that the construction of the facilities [the emergency sewer plant repairs]... is not commenced, the sum of One Hundred Dollars."

The concept behind the consent agreement is laudable: Bethel has been polluting the Androscoggin River from at least 1982 because of a poorly designed and/or poorly constructed sewer plant. The pollution should, and must cease.

So far, so good. But where is it written that the best way of solving the problem is to make temporary repairs?

Consider the following facts: The 15-year-old plant was designed to process 300,000 gallons of wastewater per day. It has trouble processing much more than 100,000 gallons per day. The emergency repairs—cost $860,000—will get its capacity up to around 206,000 gallons per day. Further repairs to the plant—estimated to cost between a few hundred thousand to over a half-million dollars—could get the capacity up to about 250,000 gallons per day.

Total bill for a patchwork plant still performing below its rated capacity (and below Bethel's needs): around $1.5 million. (This does not take into consideration the leaking sewer lines, which require millions of dollars more to fix.)

Two years ago, Sunday River Ski Resort put in a sewer plant for $2 million. It has a rated capacity of 300,000 gallons per day, expandable to 450,000. Sunday River owner Les Otten says he thinks if he were to build the plant now, with the softer construction market, he could do it for the same price.

Does it make sense to temporize with an ailing plant when it might be possible to start fresh, with a new plant, for not much more money? When the price tag for repairs to the present plant was $480,000, it seemed like a reasonable solution to the problem and to the DEP moratorium on new sewer hook-ups. And therefore Town Meeting approved the borrowing last February. But as more is learned about the problems at the plant, and about the ultimate cost to cure those problems, the quick fix seems less desirable.

There is no point in being railroaded into making a hasty decision. When Town Meeting convenes in a special session next Tuesday night, voters should press the selectmen to explain why a patchwork job is the best approach to the problem. And voters should not accept the excuse that DEP is in the driver's seat and town officials are only doing what the state agency says. Both sides took part in the negotiations leading to the draft consent agreement, and it was the selectmen's consultants who devised the formula for the quick fix.

While the selectmen are calling Town Meeting into session to choose a way of funding the $860,000 in emergency repairs, voters need not feel compelled to select any one of the three funding alternatives put forward.

Just last week, Vinalhaven voters were in a similar situation. Their selectmen gave them two options for a new sewer plant. (Presently they have none.) The voters turned down both proposals, arguing that they first wanted to know how much would be paid by state and federal grants and what the final cost would be to users.

The past few weeks of open discussion about Bethel's sewer system has brought much information out from behind closed doors: significantly, the Town's response to the DEP's draft consent agreement and that agency's counter-proposal to the Town. But there is still much more that the selectmen must explain, including why they think it's better to put patches on the present plant rather than try to get to state and federal aid to build a new one.

FROM THE Bethel Town Office

The main focus of this week's column will be upon the status of the sewer consent agreement we are presently negotiating with the DEP for lifting the sewer connection moratorium. We will explain the proposed warrant articles for the Oct. 10 Special Town Meeting.

In April the DEP submitted to us a consent agreement for us to sign. By signing the consent agreement the DEP would have allowed a partial lifting of the sewer connection moratorium. A full lifting of the moratorium would occur only when the sewer plant upgrade work was completed. However, the Town decided at that time not to sign the agreement for the following reasons: The amount of the penalty ($35,000) for past wastewater discharge license violations, unrealistic compliance deadlines, and the $100 a day fines for failing to meet these deadlines. On July 26 the Town submitted a counter-proposal included a $10,000 penalty. In the revised agreement the DEP agreed to extend the date for the completion of the upgrade work, dropped some of the daily fines, increased the number of net residential units, or the commercial equivalent, which can be connected to the sewer system before the upgrade work is completed, provided, of course, provisions are made to remove five gallons of stormwater from the system for every gallon of sewage discharged into the system. However, they kept the daily fines for failure to complete the upgrade work on schedule and for any failure on our part to submit a plan to them by April 1, 1990 for repairing and replacing old, deteriorating, leaky sewer lines. In addition they would not budge on the payment of the $35,000 penalty.

Since the main obstacle to the signing of the agreement is the amount of the penalty, we are in the process of having the DEP files reviewed to determine the fairness of the fine as compared to other towns which are similar in size and have similar sewer plant problems.

The Town has already received construction bids for the sewer plant rehabilitation work. However, because the low bid came in over the engineer's estimate, a special town meeting was held on Sept. 21 to act upon a request to authorize the borrowing of an additional $380,000 for the purpose of completing the construction project. The proposed rehabilitation and maintenance work would enable the plant to meet its original design capacity of treating 300,000 gallons of sewage per day and allow the plant to handle surges up to 874,000 gallons per day (gpd) during periods of heavy storms. Presently when the flow going through the plant exceeds 200,000 gpd the excess untreated wastewater is bypassed directly into the river. This results in a violation of our wastewater discharge license. With the signing of the consent agreement and the completion of the sewer plant rehabilitation work, the DEP will totally lift the sewer connection ban and allow for more hook-ups to the system, provided of course five gallons of stormwater is removed from the system for every gallon of sewage discharged into the system.

Although the voters overwhelmingly rejected the request, they made it clear that they were not against the sewer upgrade work, but only against the loan of repaying the loan for the project. They felt that the entire burden for repaying the loan should not be borne by 422 sewer users. Instead, they believed that a portion of it should be repaid from general taxation. This approach would spread the repayment cost throughout the community.

In order to provide the voters with the opportunity to decide how they wish to repay the loan, the selectmen have scheduled a second town meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 10, at 7 p.m., at the Telstar Regional High School auditorium. At that time three separate warrant articles will be presented to the voters, allowing them to select the loan repayment method of their choice. The choices include the following: 1) repaying the entire $380,000 loan from taxation; 2) repaying one half of the loan from sewer user fees and the remainder from taxation; and 3) repaying the entire loan from sewer user fees.

In summary, the sewer issue has to be addressed as two parts of a whole. The rehabilitation and repair of the aging, deteriorating sewer plant, which has experienced operational and maintenance problems from almost the beginning, and the repair and replacement of the old cracking sewer pipes which allow excessive amounts of surface water and groundwater to enter the sewer system during periods of peak flow thereby disrupting the operation of the plant and causing untreated wastewater to be bypassed directly into the river.

Prison bond not needed

By the Maine Council of Churches

The Maine Council of Churches announced last week it is mounting a campaign to oppose Governor John McKernan's $35 million prison bond package, slated to appear on the Nov. 7 ballot.

Working in coalition with other groups, the Council has emerged as the leader of the growing public concern over the administration's handling of the corrections crisis in the state.

The Maine Council's Criminal Justice Committee, chaired by Bowdoin professor Craig McEwen, and other groups have been calling for prison reform in the state for more than a decade. Recently, however, as the situation has intensified, the Department of Corrections and the administration have come under increasing criticism for their approach to the crisis.

The Maine Council of Churches sent a letter to Gov. McKernan on Sept. 7 outlining several key questions and concerns about the proposed $35 million bond package for a 200-bed expansion to the as yet unbuilt "Supermax" prison in Warren. The Council called for a thorough, public debate before Maine's voters are asked to approve such a huge expenditure. To date officials have not responded.

"We support the idea of an alliance of administration officials, members of the judiciary, legislators and community groups to develop a comprehensive and creative approach," said MCC Executive Director Tom Ewell. "We must look at the whole problem—outdated facilities, overcrowding and shortages of staff and programming. Building this very expensive prison is not going to solve the problems and it will create a terrible burden for the Maine taxpayer. We believe this is an irresponsible use of scarce resources."

The Maine Council of Churches plans a series of public meetings, mailings and other events to encourage discussion and public evaluation of this issue between now and Election Day.

The Maine Council of Churches opposes the $35 million expansion of the unbuilt prison at Warren because:

- Maine does not need more maximum security prison cells. The state projects a need by 1995 for 435 general population beds. It will have 455 such beds (355 at Maine State Prison, Thomaston; 100 at Warren). Although inmate populations are running well above projections, the number of maximum security prisoners is 240 today, compared to projections of 281 for 1989. The biggest unmet needs are at the community and minimum security levels.

- The proposed prison cells are unjustifiably expensive. The 200 additional beds will cost $175,000 per bed against a 1988 average of $39,855 for maximum security beds. In fact, part of this high cost is a result of building sufficient program space for a total of 400 (not just 200) additional inmates. However, you figure it, though, this is a very costly prison to build. Worse yet, these new cells will be very expensive to operate, costing about half a billion dollars over the next 30 years.

- The heavy investment in this unnecessary prison could actually prevent Maine from solving the problem of overcrowding. Maine cannot afford both this high cost and the additional construction and operating expenses necessary to match project population increases and to reduce those increases through sentencing alternatives and expanded probation service. The same expenditures required by this bond issue could solve most of Maine's overcrowding problems if more wisely spent.

- The problems of overcrowding and security at the Maine State Prison can be solved more quickly and cost-effectively by creating new prison space and programming for the many inmates who do not require maximum security. This will release pressures at Thomaston resulting from the mixing of maximum security and other offenders at the prison. Currently the Maine State Prison houses 71 minimum security prisoners, 187 medium security prisoners and 240 maximum security prisoners. Substantial numbers (over 10 percent) of the Maine State Prison population are elderly, disabled or ill and are inappropriately placed there.

- Court takeover of the prisons does not appear imminent or likely; its threat should not determine a decision about this prison. The National Prison Project review conditions at Thomaston last year. Although they found the cells small, some areas badly overcrowded and inappropriately used for housing and a long list of health and safety problems, they did not feel a general lawsuit against the prison was warranted. The major reason for that is that the levels of violence in Maine prisons are very low in comparison to many other states. In fact, the rate of inmate-on-inmate violence (stemming from overcrowding but also from the nature of the inmate populations) has been the major cause for finding prison conditions unconstitutional.

- You may hear the observation that the Maine State Prison is not really a maximum security prison. Don't be confused by this observation. The issue is not one of escapes and "perimeter security" but of efficient internal supervision. The prison is poorly designed and requires more staff as a result. Unfortunately, these same problems would exist if the Maine State Prison were called "medium security." The only way to solve the problem is to tear the prison down, but the Department of Corrections has decided against that option.

- What does the Maine Council of Churches advocate instead of this bond proposal? We are not opposed to building prisons. In fact, we supported the bond issue to build the 100 bed prison. All the evidence that we have indicates, however, that Maine can resolve its overcrowding problem through a balanced plan for building new beds, providing Faculty awards for 1989 went to Valeria Kimball Glaser, teacher of Latin and English from 1951 to 1958, and Wilbur Myers, bursar, ski coach and teacher from 1931 to 1971. Mrs. Glaser recalled her years as a teacher and dorm parent as the happiest years of her working life. Mr. Myers was not able to attend the award presentations due to ill health, but his family sent their appreciation.

The Mary Whitney Gould Alumni Achievement award was given to Henry and Mary Senese, of Concord, Mass., parents of Pamela '82 and Pia '84. At the end of the presentations, Headmaster Bill Clough remarked that in his 28-year experience in private education, he had never witnessed such a large showing of alumni, nor such enthusiasm, support and involvement. "The overriding theme of this weekend," he said, "and a consistent goal of the Gould faculty, is that great things are accomplished by many hours of hard and often unrecognized work. Gould alumni are indeed special in their willingness to do so much and ask for so little."

Over 50 former Gould Ski Team members and skiing enthusiasts were on hand for the dedication of the newly completed Kailey Cross-Country Ski Trails. Headmaster Clough read letters from such friends and former competitors as John Bower, formerly of Auburn and now director of the U.S. Ski Team. In recalling the Kailey years, Herb Adams '54 stressed not only Paul's skiing accomplishments but also his personal qualities that were such an important part of his success.

Immediately following the dedication, Paul, current Gould skiers and coaches, and about 10 former Gould Ski Team members formed a work party to put the finishing touches on a rugged section of the newly constructed trail.

expenditures and operating costs. It was prepared by a small working group of legislative and executive branch leaders, judges and community members. This work need not take long and can build upon the Reports of the Joint Select Committee, Governor Brennan's Blue Ribbon Commission and the Department of Correction's Master Plan.

Department are expected to make-do with what they have. Maybe the money spent on trees on Main Street and some other such things wouldn't go far toward what is needed, but it would be a help.

Every taxpayer is paying for schools, airport and every other thing. So why should the ones on the sewer pay for the whole thing.

To the Editor:
Dear residents of Upton: I have never lived in Upton. I spent a great deal of my growing up years visiting in Upton. My grandparents lived there for several years. I visited the Barnetts and the Cellys. I always thought that Upton was one of the prettiest towns in the State of Maine. Well kept houses. The Abbott House—Mrs. Durkee's place of business at the end of Mill Hill. Grange Hall was the sight of Saturday night dances, public speaking contests and amateur shows. The church was active. The Ladies Aid building a beehive of activity.

The beautiful houses burned. My reason for writing, I guess, is to ask you to think about using your energies in a positive way. There is surely a lot of energy being spent that is not doing anyone or anything much good.

Jim chairman of the Maine Street '90 Celebration for Newry and you have lots of room for improvements, just like all towns. So why don't you get active in a Maine Street '90 Celebration project. Spruce up your town—show that you have pride in your community—stop all these ugly rumors going around about funding and fighting.

Just very concerned.

To the Editor:
The response to the relief effort for the victims of Hurricane Hugo was overwhelming. We would like to take this opportunity to give a special thank-you to all who contributed in any way: to the Woodstock School for their contribution of canned goods (Wow!), EBS and CBS for their combined efforts of canned goods, clothing and toys, to Western Maine Supply for their contribution of nails, aprons and pencils, to the mysterious supplier of 10 cases of hot chocolate, Brooks Bros. for packaging tape, Roberts Poultry Farm for the eggs, Reggie Brown for allowing us to use his garage as a drop-off point, to all the area churches for their generous contributions of clothing and household items and to the individuals who contributed clothing and canned goods.

We had many volunteers packing boxes, making coffee and preparing lunch for us on Saturday and to them, give a big hug and a thank-you. Last, but certainly not least, thank you to St. Johnsbury Trucking Company for donating their time and their truck to send everything to South Carolina. It is amazing what can be done when you band together to help those less fortunate. God bless you all.

Many individuals deserve recognition for making the Freshmen Awareness workshop a valuable experience. The Bethel Inn again provided the facilities of its conference center; thanks to Cindy Salow and Tim Brooks; special guest speakers Patricia Williams and Bill Wood provided self-esteem building presentations; career presenters Rose Sumner (B.E.A.R.S.), Mary Hargreaves (Oxford Hills Dental Association), Deb-Dee Bower (counseling), Brian Stewart (Bethel police chief), Jim Collins (University of Maine at Farmington), Tamara Poland (West Bethel Children's Center), Jonathan Henkel (Rumford Community Hospital), and Robert Serenczyk (C.M.V.I.T.), substance abuse presenters Rod Abbott (Telstar Regional High School), Peggy Newton (Tri-County Mental Health) and Paula Perham of West Paris.

Also, special consideration goes to Marguerite Graham, of Bethel, for being a decision-making panelist; Mrs. Juanita Korhonen, of West Bethel for the refreshments; financial assistance for workshop costs was provided by Masonic Lodge members of Bethel; First Parish Congregational Church; C.A.D.E.T. and the American Legion Munnit-Allen Post.

The presence and support of the following was also appreciated: Aspiration mentors; Ken and Gwyneth Boir, Walter Hatch, Melinda Remington and Jim Yarnell; Telstar faculty Larry Arsenault, Rod Abbott, Steve Keane, Beverly Melville, Charles Raymond and Russell Torrore.

We believe that the Freshmen Awareness workshop is one of many programs at SAD #4 that promotes positive attitudes and is a community effort.

Letters to the editor

To the Editor:

Reading this past week's "Citizen" almost sounded to me like a return to the Vietnam era when everyone was blaming someone else and saying, "How do we get out of this mess?" Fingers are pointing at the school board, the SAD administrators and faculty and at the Bethel selectmen. Of course, everyone else can lay at themselves in the mirror and see their personal halo of innocence.

Despite the fact that Bethel formally adopted a comprehensive plan, I do not personally believe that the current generation of voters has individually comprehended "The Plan." I think that we are deadlocked over Bethel's main issue of the last several years—growth or not growth. North Conway or the sweet bird of youth.

We continue to come back to the question of what are Bethel's futures and what are Bethel's choices. If there could be a town meeting vote on these questions, it might clear the air. Then we could elect a board of selectmen to carry system.

Although the voters overwhelmingly rejected the request, they made it clear that they were not against the sewer upgrade work, but only against the loan of repaying the loan for the project. They felt that the entire burden for repaying the loan should not be borne by 422 sewer users. Instead, they believed that a portion of it should be repaid from general taxation. This approach would spread the repayment cost throughout the community.

In order to provide the voters with the opportunity to decide how they wish to repay the loan, the selectmen have scheduled a second town meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 10, at 7 p.m., at the Telstar Regional High School auditorium. At that time three separate warrant articles will be presented to the voters, allowing them to select the loan repayment method of their choice. The choices include the following: 1) repaying the entire $380,000 loan from taxation; 2) repaying one half of the loan from sewer user fees and the remainder from taxation; and 3) repaying the entire loan from sewer user fees.

In summary, the sewer issue has to be addressed as two parts of a whole. The rehabilitation and repair of the aging, deteriorating sewer plant, which has experienced operational and maintenance problems from almost the beginning, and the repair and replacement of the old cracking sewer pipes which allow excessive amounts of surface water and groundwater to enter the sewer system during periods of peak flow thereby disrupting the operation of the plant and causing untreated wastewater to be bypassed directly into the river.

out a mandate and not continue blaming them and the school system for the ambiguities present in our own public opinions.

Bethel's future must include cooperation with its neighboring towns and Albany. And if Bethel is at the hub of smaller towns who need Bethel's development of "infrastructure," then maybe the time has come to share the expenses as well as the benefits.

Environmental concern seems to be the "in" phrase nowadays. The ecology of community life includes links with the communities around us whether we like it or not. If one sneezes then we all get cold. Let's decide in a public forum, with a democratic vote, what it is the public wants its administrators and guardians of the trust to do. Then we can say to developers, outsiders and insiders: "We the people of this community have decided in public meeting that this is the way we are going to go"—like it or not.

To the Editor:

Along with the recent news of the Maine Educational Assessment scores of last year's juniors, the discussion of a weighted grade system; open houses and fall athletic events, to cite a few, the SAD #4 staff and administration, as well as the entire community at large, should also be informed of the events of the Freshmen Awareness workshop, Sept. 25-26.

During this two-day workshop, 79 of 82 freshmen attended and participated both days. The 9th-graders were provided with an educational workshop in areas of career information; sexuality and health; small group process; decision-making; school spirit, making high school a better place; self-esteem development; substance use and abuse education and more.

This two-day workshop has grown during its seven-year history. A team of upper-classmen plan, develop and facilitate the Freshmen Awareness program three months in advance. This year, 356 upper-classmen were Freshmen Awareness Committee (members) at Telstar (F.A.C.T.), an all-time high.

Most of the team members were sophomores, who had recently participated in a Freshmen Awareness workshop last year. F.A.C.T. members are from varied academic, extracurricular and social backgrounds. Some of them had been "on the fence" as freshmen, whether to get involved with scholastic, school spirit and leadership opportunities. Therefore, the Freshmen Awareness workshop has become an enjoyable, educational and self-motivating program for freshmen and upper-classmen.

TO MAKE IT EASIER for visitors to locate Maine's public reserved lands, the Maine Department of Conservation's Bureau of Public Lands has been placing new signs along Maine's highways and back roads. The bright, blue-colored signs identify various management units, such as the Richardson Lake unit in Oxford County. Other signs, identifying boat launching areas, camping regulations, special wildlife management projects and other Bureau facilities are located throughout the management units. For more information about public reserved lands, call the Bureau, in Augusta, at 289-3061.

Selectmen

$500,000 construction job done by the National Guard, and in addition to State monies and in-kind contributions from the town.

Mr. Lynch said he needed more of the federal money in order to pay airport construction bills and was contacting the Congressional delegation to see if he could obtain early release of the remainder of the FAA money earmarked for airport construction.

The airport industry park also required some additional money. The town's consultant on the planned subdivision—T.Y. Lin—submitted another two bills, totaling $83,622.

Selectman John Thurstall noted that on one bill, one of the T.Y. Lin employees was costing the town $44 an hour, while on the second bill his time was billed at $50 an hour. He wondered about the difference. Mr. Jodrey told the town manager, "Tell them we'd a lot rather have the $44 rate." And Mr. Haines simply decided he was not going to authorize paying the two bills. Nevertheless, the vote to pay the new bills was 4-1.

In other matters, Mr. Lynch informed the board that the U.S. Census Bureau would be conducting the 1990 census in Bethel next April.

Steve Wight, the president of the Friends of the Androscoggin made a presentation to the board on that group's efforts to make the river more accessible to recreational interests in the Bethel area.

Mr. Wight said the group had located five access points in the Bethel vicinity: in Hanover, at Erik Nelson's property near the rapids; in West Bethel, near the Newton & Tobbetts mill; at the Rie. 2 picnic area; on the former Davis property along Rte. 26 (which has been purchased by a person who hopes to develop a canoe rental business there); and in North Bethel, on a piece of land owned by Eva School.

It was this last-named site that brought a number of people from Northwest Bethel to the meeting, and they were not too happy. Bill Williams worried that the site could become a camping area. "Pretty soon you'll have rowdies in there," he said.

Mr. Wight said his group would look into putting a chain across the property, which, he said, Eva Schools wanted to give the group in order to preserve it from development.

Frank Gibson, who is an abutter to the Schools site, asked, "Why do you need a site on each side of the river?"

Mr. Wight explained that the Newton site would be the primary spot for putting in canoes, while the Schools site would be mainly a resting spot for those already on the river.

Mr. Gibson was also concerned about the outcome of popularizing the river. "Once you get a lot of people on the river, it's not going to only be nice people. There's also going to be some rough suckers. Who's going to police the river?"

The selectmen were not directly involved in the issue, since any contract between Eva Schools and a conservation trust being set up would be a private matter. The board may be asked, however, to act as the lessee for the Newton pull-in site—which should be a 11-year lease.

Mr. Wight also told the board of his group's plan to carve out a six-foot-wide "walkway" and bikeway along the river edge, from Bethel to Newry Corner. This plan—which would depend on the riverfront landowners giving permission for trespass across their properties—also drew some criticism from those in attendance and from the board. Of most concern was the likelihood of four-wheelers getting onto the pathway. "You're going to have trouble with four-wheelers anytime you make something six-foot wide," Mr. Williams said.

don't understand what's entailed," said Selectwoman Pat Doon. "Tell me how much it would cost to dig up every street in town," she added.

Board Chairman Arlan Jodrey said, "It's just a matter of do you change the right tire first or the left tire first."

Selectman Peter Haines, who had missed a number of meetings due to health problems, expressed sympathy for the sewer users, and said he could understand why Town Meeting voted down the original supplemental loan proposal. "I can see the sewer users being upset."

But the selectmen did not indicate their own preference for which of the three options they favor. Instead, they resolved to set up an ad hoc committee to study the matter of repayment of sewer loans and report back to the board with a recommendation by early next year.

a hearing in June, that MCI officials would not furnish him any information on their equipment and would not let him tour the facility.

MCI, for its part, told the board it did not have the information requested by Mr. Austin.

In announcing its ruling, board chairman John MacGregor wrote, "It is inconceivable to this board that MCI did not know or have available to it all necessary facts concerning Andover earth station and its contents at the time of acquisition."

COMSAT (now MCI) is the largest taxpayer in Andover and Selectwoman Rich said the state ruling would spare Andover taxpayers a 35 percent tax increase, at the very least.

MCI can appeal the board ruling to the state court system if it so desires.

Fundraiser named for Telstar Music Boosters

Andover music booster Donna Smith has recently accepted the position of coordinator of fund-raising for the Telstar Music Boosters. That is a very challenging opportunity this year since the music department has some rather substantial needs to meet.

First there is the need of $3,000-$4,000 to supplement the money budgeted by the district this year toward the purchase of new band uniforms. The old uniforms have simply outlived their usefulness, band director Harry Davis says. The marching band is also in need of some additional equipment that is not covered by the current budget. And, but not least, the music department is in need of a computer and printer. There are dozens of outstanding computer programs for use in music teaching at present and new programs every day are making for more effective instruction and administration.

Each year the band members earn and spend substantial sums on needed equipment and uniforms for the marching band auxiliary units, but this year's needs will require too much for the students to tackle alone. Mrs. Smith has several ideas in mind and fund-raising will commence very soon. The band is hoping to look good when they appear in the Patriot's Day Parade in Lexington, Mass., next April.

ITV system formally inaugurated Tuesday

There will be an open house and convocation sponsored by the Community College of Maine on Tuesday, Oct. 10, from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. This event will be observed at the Telstar Regional High School ITV site and interested members of the public are invited to gather in the Telstar lecture hall at 11 a.m. for the convocation.

Speakers will include dignitaries from state government and the university system as the University of Maine at Augusta kicks off its 20th anniversary year and launches the ITV system.

Adult and Community Education Director Cathy Newell asks that those planning to attend call the Adult Education office, at 824-7700. The convocation will last about an hour and will be followed by a light lunch and the opportunity to see the Telstar ITV site.

Music more popular this year at Telstar

The Telstar Music Department is operating in high gear this year, according to Band Director Harry Davis. Enrollment in concert band, marching band and jazz band are all the highest they have been in five years.

Mr. Davis attributes the high level of participation to some of the band's successful activities during the past two years, the purchase of instruments and equipment through the curriculum review process, and a very concerted effort by the Guidance Department, the Music Department, and the administration to get students scheduled into band and general music courses.

More than 70 high school students are involved in one or more music activities so far this year and that number is expected to increase with the beginning of a high school chorus next week.

Middle School music has also expanded this year, through a cooperative effort of the middle school administration, faculty, and Music Department. In the past, only Grade 6 has been involved in a general music class. Now, middle school classes are being taught in all three middle school grades.

Once again the Music Department will produce "Halloween Howl," the annual fundraiser designed to give local Telstar "Members" the department's annual Christmas report.

Among the several additional activities in the week are several parade appearances by the marching band and auxiliaries, which will feature a new rifle corps, majorettes, and pom-pom girls. Highlight of the year for these groups will be their appearance in the Patriot's Day Parade, in Lexington, Mass., in April. Details of all Music Department activities will be appearing in the news as they become available.

Telstar hockey squads keep up winning ways

Telstar's field hockey squad beat Dixie, 4-0, and Livermore Falls, 2-0, in Mountain Valley Conference play last week.

In the first contest, Kristi Clement scored once in the first half and twice in the second 30 minutes with assists going to Shilo Hutchins and Mary-Beth Hannan. Kris Delano scored the second goal on a crossover from Amy Hannan. The entire defensive backfield showed strong drives, as goalie Dani Bernier had three saves.

The JV's also won, 1-0, when Crystal Chase scored 19 minutes into the second half on a pass from Angie Hebert.

In the second varsity victory of the week, the Rebels adjusted to Livermore's style of play and beat them to the ball, setting up the game's only two scores. The first goal was a deflection by Amy Hannan from Kristi Clement at the 4-30 mark in the second half. The final score came with only four minutes left in the game as Shilo Hutchins connected on a pass from Amy Hannan after a free hit into the circle.

Jen Bailey, Jen Gould, Mary-Beth Hannan, Nancy Carter, Angie Jordan, Shannon Tyler and Sarah Hebert kept the ball away from Telstar's goalie and she never had to make a save.

The JV's also beat the Andies, 2-0, as Angie Hebert and Crystal Chase scored.

Local donors generous with hurricane relief

The Hurricane Hugo relief drive organized by Mary McVey and Kathy Jo Farren, and assisted by families of the Ethel Bishop School and St. Johnsbury Trucking, was a great success.

EBS families donated over 20 large bags of clothing, blankets, dried and canned goods, which were collected in the front hall of the school. Last Friday, Mrs. Farren and Mrs. McVey gathered up the contribution.

After sorting out the wealth of donated materials that also came flooding into their homes, the two local ladies prepared the lot for shipment to Charleston, S.C., courtesy of St. Johnsbury Trucking, free of charge.

PAT AND LARRY WYMAN are comfortably at home in the kitchen of their Andover Arms Bread and Breakfast. Formerly of Shrewsbury, Mass., the couple came to Andover to "get away from the hectic life in Massachusetts."

Newcomers have no regrets about leaving rat race

When Ilene and Paul Trainor moved to Andover they did it with a bang. Within a 24-hour period in October of 1988, they quit their jobs; got married; moved to Maine; and passed papers on their house. The same day the papers were passed they happily got the message that they had sold their house in Norton, Mass.

As camping enthusiasts with a love for canoeing and fishing, they have also purchased six acres near the Covered Bridge in Andover, with 1,000 foot frontage on the river. Electricity has recently been connected on the land.

Their Pine Street home is 100 years old, and Ilene is constantly inquiring about its history. She found a picture of it, without the screened porch, in the Andover historical book.

"When we first came in we knew it was the house for us. It just had a feeling about it," she said.

Since then, renovations on the property have taken up a lot of their time, including Paul's remodeling of the bedrooms. An oversized septic system has also been installed.

Early this year they opened Pine Ellis Lodging, which now is open year-round. The skiing season was well underway last year before the place was in shape, but they have big ideas for this year.

Plans for building on their six acres, with the view of the Covered Bridge, are up in the air at present, although they still manage to go there when they can.

Both Ilene and Paul worked for the State School for the Mentally and Physically Handicapped in Massachusetts, where they met, and decided to "leave the rat race," in spite of their employment security, and move north. Since then, Ilene has worked part-time jobs, and Paul does maintenance for M.C.I. in Andover.

"It was scary making the move without employment, but we have never had a second thought about our decision," Ilene said. "I guess at this time of your life you get gutsy. We just love it here. Our five children from former marriages frequently visit and they love it too. I have three grandchildren and they just love the idea of sledding in the backyard."

"We have found from last year that skiers really appreciate the idea of driving routes 2 and 5 to Andover from Sunday River, instead of heading toward Bethel, where the traffic is often terrible," Paul said. "Most all our customers are looking for peace and quiet, and they sure can find it here."

So far their roomers have included skiers, travelers from Canada, as well as return visitors to Andover and families attending a reunion at Roxbury Pond and a wedding in town.

"Children under 12 stay free," Ilene explained, "and we offer low family rates and a homey atmosphere. All the renovations we have made are in keeping with the style of the house. People who stay here just love the thought of being able to use the kitchen if they want. Some of our customers loved a bedroom so much they wanted to rest and not even come down to breakfast, so I brought it up on a tray!"

Into a second marriage of three years, Pat and Larry Wyman moved to Andover from Shrewsbury, Mass. in 1987 "to get away from the hectic life in Massachusetts." They opened the Andover Arms Bed and Breakfast and Gun Shop a year ago.

Since then, the bed and breakfast has accommodated loggers, hikers, skiers, former residents, visitors, M.C.I. workers, and many others from all over the country, as well as from Japan and England.

Interested as a nurse supervisor in mental health in Massachusetts," Pat said, "with the intention of opening a small eating place in Vermont, or doing dressmaking. And then I met Larry and he swooped me up to the mountains of Maine. When I thought of Maine before I came here I thought of Kittery."

One day recently "retirement" for Pat meant getting up at 3:30 a.m. to serve the first of five breakfasts, and ending her day at 11:45 p.m. after having served 19 at dinner. Larry also pitches in by cooking on the grill. Dinners are family style, all-you-can-eat.

"We both love company and we both love to cook," Pat explained, "so this seemed ideal for us. I had brought up four children and eight foster children, so I was used to having people around."

Before meeting Pat, Larry had been divorced for 16 years and raised a daughter himself.

"The reason we chose Andover," Larry said, "was because I grew up in Norway and I used to come up to my grandfather's camp here. I had hoped to build a camp on land my family has owned for three generations on Route 120. Then we met and built the camp anyway, but I wanted a house for my new wife. This house was ideal."

Larry, presently a driver for Western Maine Transportation, worked with the Department of Corrections and Mental Health Department in Massachusetts. He was an avid gun collector with a dream of opening a gun shop. The gun shop stocks not only guns but fishing equipment, camping supplies, and various other items an outdoorsman would need. A lot of their customers are hikers of the Appalachian Trail. Larry also holds ammunition reloading classes for the public.

Besides roomers at the Wymans', who have the use of the whole house, two foster children—Deshawn and David, ages 21-months and three years—also occupy the premises, much to the delight of the visitors.

A former customer is planning to rent the entire house during the ski season for a group who are bringing sleeping bags and are planning to occupy even the floors and couches. Rooms have already booked solid for the hunting season.

"I'm doing what I want to do so it doesn't seem like work," Pat added.

Marion Soule, of Palermo, stayed a few days with Leah Deegan, and then Leah went down for the weekend with her. As Nathan Moore went out to catch the bus, Friday morning, he was startled to find a moose wandering through.

Andover couple open weekend gem shop

Beginning this month, Down East Gems, now run from the Andexler home in Andover, will be opening a weekend shop on Main Street, with extended hours the weeks prior to Christmas.

The business is operated by Paul and Betty Andexler, who moved to Andover from Lowell, Mass., three years ago, after living temporarily with Betty's mother in Scarborough, and camping for three months at Lone Pine Campground in Newry.

Paul, with a geology degree from Northeastern University, is a shift worker at Boise. Since his hobby is rockhounding, western Maine seemed "the best place to move to."

Betty, who is learning both silversmithing and goldsmithing, provided a rock and mineral presentation at Andover Elementary School during the summer, and also to Mrs. Stuart's 2nd Grade recently. She, along with Cindy Simmons, is also a new Cub Scout leader for the Webelos.

"This area is known to rock collectors all over the world," Mr. Andexler said. "I do a lot of my own prospecting. The tourmaline I find is of so much better quality than any I can buy."

His prospecting involves following dirt roads through woods and fields, and he often travels on foot long distances to quarries.

"Andover is one of the prettiest towns around," Mrs. Andexler said. "It has the nicest views. When Paul was working 12-hour shifts, it was my job to find us a house. I drove by and saw the realtor sign and here we are. It was a major drive for us to get out of Lowell. No way was my son [Thomas, age seven] going to school in Lowell. The only disappointment we have had here is the high speed traffic going through town."

The Andexlers also have a son Stephen, age one year.

Elderwood Manor Items

by Florence Hall
Bus riders from the Manor to Rumbold on Wednesday were Catherine McGuire, Elizabeth Sennett and Gladys Charter. Elizabeth Sennett is home from her visit with her daughter, Charlotte Hayes, in Thomaston.

Gertrude Hutchins was in Lewiston for a doctor's appointment on Thursday.

Florence Hall went with nephew Louis and Judy Hall to Belfast to visit with their daughter, Gail Knox, husband Bill and daughter Allela.

While there, nephew Keith Hall and wife Frances, Orland, and William and Alice Helm, Belfast, former Andover residents, called upon them.

Thought for the day: The quickest way to wipe out a friendship is by sponging.

NEWS FROM

Andover Elementary School

The next meeting of the Andover Elementary School Parent/Teachers Association will be Tuesday, Oct. 10, at 7 p.m., at the home of Principal Karen Robinson, on North Main Street. There will be an election of officers and Christmas/Thanksgiving ideas will be discussed. Also on the agenda will be ideas for fund-raising to finance the December whole-school Norlands trip.

John Emery is contacting the state task force to review the best placement and types of equipment for the playing fields, which have been developing at a much faster rate than expected. Mr. Emery said a major goal for next year is to develop the fields and suggested a five-year plan be put in effect based on the money available the next few years. Present members of the committee handling the playing fields are John Emery, Kim Zytkewicz, Fred Emerson, Mary Richardson, Karen Robinson and Margie Bartlett. New members are sought as well as a dynamic parent to chair the committee.

The next meeting of the library committee will be Oct. 16, at 2:30 p.m., in the Andover Elementary School teachers' room. Members of the library committee are Toby Bromberg, Carol Littlehale, Ruth Spidel, Mary Richardson, Joanne Shelton, Adrienne Gallant, Karen Robinson and Saundry Cohen. Carol Stuart has volunteered to adopt the bottles-for-books barrel and needs parents to help. Anyone interested may call Toby Bromberg.

STONEHAM CHURCH SUPPER

The East Stoneham Congregational Church, off Rte. 5, will hold a harvest supper in the church vestry, Thursday, Oct. 12, 5:45-8 p.m. The menu will be corned beef, potatoes, vegetables, pie and beverages. A harpsichord recital will follow at 7 p.m.

BETHEL SENIOR CITIZENS

Forty-four Senior Citizens from North Waterford, South Paris, Norway and Bethel enjoyed an outstanding foliage trip to Dixville Notch through the 13-Mile Woods and back via Grafton Notch.

The famous buffet of The Balsams and a tour of the area made this an occasion that will be repeated some future year.

The next meeting of the Bethel Club will be Wednesday, Oct. 11, at 11 a.m., at the Rumbold Point Church for the popular chicken pie dinner and program.

Paul specializes in tourmaline, birthstone rings, earrings, and mothers' rings, which require three weeks' notice. He also has compiled a catalogue of his wares. A new shipment of tourmaline is all cut and ready to be set into jewelry. He sends a lot of his stones overseas for cutting and polishing, due to lack of time and equipment. The turnaround time is about a month.

In his office he has a large collection of exquisite stones of various hues to be put into whatever setting the customer chooses. There is topaz, raspberry garnet, and many other specimens specifically found in western Maine. Near his workspace is a favorite of his, a specially autographed copy of Jane Perham's book, "Maine's Treasure Chest."

"I believe this area still holds a lot of exciting finds," Mr. Andexler said, and one could tell from the gleam in his eye that he intends to unearth them.

BARBARA SABIN'S KINDERGARTEN CLASS at Andover Elementary School had a lesson in school bus safety recently.

JACKSON-SILVER UNIT NEWS

A regular meeting of Jackson Silver Unit, American Legion Auxiliary was held on Sept. 21. Among those attending were guests Jeri Brooks, Past Department President, and her mother Carolyn Brooks, of Bethel.

Discussions were mainly centered on plans for the next two meetings. On Oct. 5 there will be a meeting with a program on England. Ruth Wight and Mary Lyon will do the presentation.

The Oct. 19 meeting will be a special one. There will be a 6:30 p.m. membership supper followed by a program honoring the young people who attended Boys' and Girls' State sessions this past June. They will be giving their reports and there will be other guest speakers.

A letter was read from the committee that was formed to plan for the 175th anniversary of the incorporation of the Town of Woodstock. There was some discussion as to how the unit might contribute to the celebration and President Noreen Russo was nominated to attend the informational and planning meeting of Sept. 26 in the conference room at the Town Office.

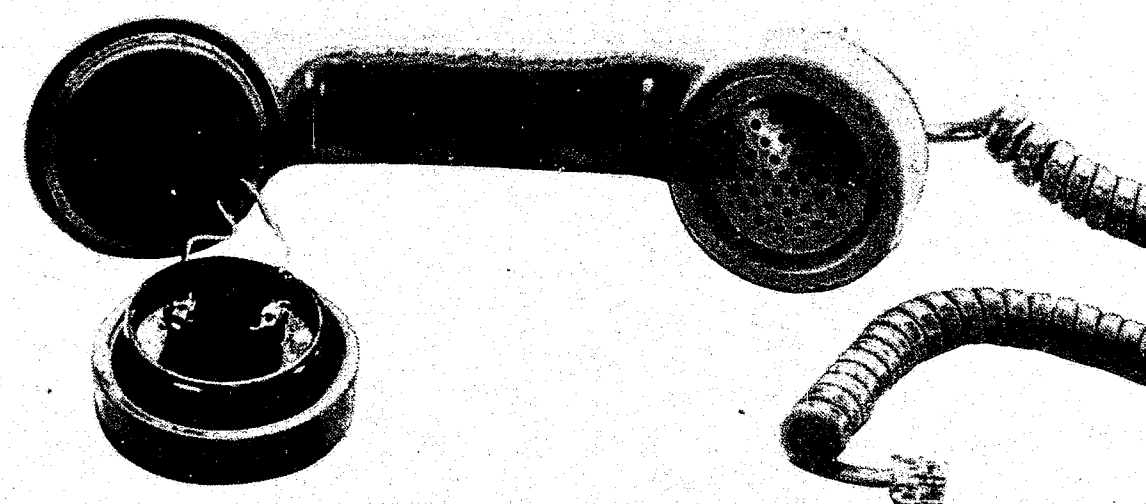

When called upon for remarks, Jeri Brooks, who is on the FOWMA Vigil Committee, suggested the unit might wish to invite the special group to participate in the parade and stand vigil as they did during Mollycoddett Day festivities. Ms. Brooks is also on the National Junior Activities Committee and spoke about some of their projects and mentioned the need for fund-raising in order to continue to involve the junior members in worthwhile activities. The mystery prize was won by Carolyn Brooks.

A beautiful morning after the rains of yesterday was last night. At least it let up for a while so I got a chance to go for my daily walk up the road. I could hear a lot of water coming down off the hills on the left hand side of the road as I started out and it made quite a noise as it went through the culverts and down through the woods on the lower side of the road. It sounded more like it did last spring than it has for a long time.

We finally got a fresh but not a real bad one as I'm sure some folks did. We are sheltered by the woods here just enough to hold it off better than if we were out in the open more. We had expected the frost as it was so cold Sunday so got out after we got home from Lewiston and picked tomatoes, cukes and the squashes and pumpkins. Guess some of them would have been alright on the vines, but as we didn't know what we would get, we picked them to try and save them.

It has been a busy week for all of us. Last Wednesday was the day that Peggy's granddaughter and husband and daughter came from Florida for a visit. They were to stay with her mother and father, the Otto Blosses, from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who have their motor home at Bryce and Barb Yates', on Sunday River Road in Newry. Kaye and Ot- to were to pick them up at the airport in Portland around 8:30 or somewhere around there, but they were late getting in and Kaye said they didn't get back to Bethel until most midnight. Baby Marissa was as good as gold all the way, her mother said, and that made it good.

We were all anxious to see the baby for the first time so went up on Thursday night to visit. I hadn't seen Justine and Fred for some time so it was good to see them and their new baby. Kaye and Ot- to had taken them for a ride around the countryside that day so they were all tired and getting supper when we got there. We visited Bryce and Barb while they ate their supper and then they too came into the house to visit. The baby was handed around for folks to hold and didn't complain at all. She was so good. Justine and Fred Romanus are her parents and they said she was so good all the way on the plane and during the day riding. She is a cutie pie and lovable as she can be. Don't wonder that Peggy thinks she is a doll!

Had been to see the doctor on Wednesday for a treatment, as I do each week. It keeps me going better.

Friday was our day to go to town for groceries and do errands as usual. Have to have one day a week to go to town for goodies. Saturday night was dance night for Peggy and Russell. They went to Locke Mills in the pouring rain to have their fun. It certainly wasn't a very good day weather-wise, that is for sure. I stayed home with TV and my knitting. Had made a dessert for a special dinner at my daughter's on Sunday.

Russell and I went to Lewiston to my daughter's on Sunday to meet with some friends and talk about the macrobiotic diet that has helped them so much. My legs felt pretty good so decided to try driving myself and made it with a few stops along the way to change positions and stretch. We met Don and Ida Randall there and had a nice visit and talk with them. Macrobiotics is the way the folks in the Eastern countries ate before they learned about the Western ways so much. They were healthier then also. One eats a lot of grains, vegetables and fresh fruit for the diet. It has helped many people to get better from arthritis and many ailments like the book written by a doctor who had cancer and was cured by going onto this diet. Quite different than what we have been used to but we are willing to try most anything to help.

Peggy had company Sunday as Kaye, Otto, Fred, Justine and baby Marissa came down to lunch. We had hoped to be home when they came but couldn't be in two places at once, and as we had made the appointment we didn't want not to keep it. We all got busy after we got home and company left and worked in the garden. Peggy had already started when we got home.

Monday was a picky day for me as I had picked the cukes on Sunday and they needed taking care of. Russell worked on tomatoes, dipping some in a Clorox solution before putting them up to ripen. The Clorox solution helps take care of bacteria and they stay better while ripening—a trick told us by Dr. Waite, in Norway. It works, too.

I also had to go to the garage on Monday to have my car looked at but found it needs fixing before I can have an alignment job done on it. It is just about worn out but can't afford another car so got to stick with this one somehow. Couldn't find a better running engine, but the body is wearing out. With the estimate they gave me on fixing it I guess it will have to wait a while before being repaired.

Tuesday was another rainy day but was glad it stopped raining long enough for me to take a walk after supper. Picked up a few cans on the way so it makes

News from the Bethel Area.

Health Center

The Bethel Area Health Center is pleased to announce that it has available to the public a "Convalescent Supply Center." This is designed for anyone with a temporary need for such items as wheelchairs, hospital beds, walkers, commodes, etc. You do not need to be a patient of the Health Center to participate in this service. We only ask that you be a local resident, either full- or part-time; sign a release good for one month and—if you need the item longer—renew the application; and return the item in good condition for the next person. There is no cost for this service.

With the law now requiring all children up to the age of 12 to be wearing seatbelts, families could find themselves in need of a car seat. We have infant car seats available that are good for children ages 9-4 months. These we rent at a cost of $15, not to exceed nine months. When the seat is returned a refund of $5 is given. If the seat is returned prior to six months the center will refund $10.

If you have any questions about either of these programs offered by the Bethel Area Health Center, call 824-2193.

The Bethel Area Health Center would like to correct the announcement in last week's paper about upcoming flu clinics. The Bethel Senior Citizens Meals site clinic was Tuesday, Oct. 3. The Bethel Area Health Center itself will be the site for the flu clinic on Thursday, Oct. 19, from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

It more worthwhile. What someone throws out can help with the grocery bill at times. Russell picks up cans, as do I, when we walk, and we turn them into the store to help with groceries. What is one man's loss is another man's gain.

Don't forget the dance at West Paris Grange Hall on Oct. 7. Come and have a good time.

Sunday, David Small and friends, Lisa and Todd, were callers at the Lovejoy's.

Saturday was a day for Mary to help her friend Marsha get craft items ready for Fryeburg Fair, which will be coming right up. Mary said they worked all day getting things ready for the Grange display. I wish them the best of luck.

Cool weather seems to have descended upon us but we have to make the best of it. Dress warmly and take care until next time. Have a good week one and all!

THE BRYANT POND PHONE MUSEUM held its annual open house last Saturday, with Judy Jamison minding the old crank system switchboard. Judy's husband, Bob, is manager of the Bryant Pond and Oxford County Telephone Co., headquartered in Buckfield.

MMMM GOOD! There were lots of home-baked apple goodies at Saturday's Apple Festival at the Rumford Point Church. The ladies who did the baking were, left to right, Barbara Burns, Barbara Cross, Bessie Etti, Diane Roberts and Marcia Stearns.

THIS IS A MOUSE HOUSE, and it will be used to house the wee beasts bred at Jackson Laboratory, Bar Harbor. The facility burned down last May, and Burlington Homes, in Oxford, has manufactured six buildings like the one above as new animal housing facilities. Each two-section modular building measures 28 by 76 feet, and each can hold thousands of mice in climate-controlled comfort. The buildings began to be shipped to Bar Harbor last week.

IF YOU'RE AFRAID OF HEIGHTS you wouldn't want to be up on the top of Leon Akers' cupola, in Andover. The octagonal-shaped cupola was built at the turn of the century by Sam Betton. That's Mel Akers doing the recent repairs to the ornament, which sits atop the Akers Ski Shop showroom.

Charlie and Jeannette Knight are pleased to have a new great-grandson, born Aug. 24. His name is Mark Robert Henderson and his proud parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henderson, of West Paris.

Lights are on again this weekend at the Greenes' house on Howe Hill as some of the family came to enjoy the fall foliage.

It won't be long before the skiing season is once more upon us, and I am sure they are looking forward to it.

Birthdays are being celebrated in Charlie and Jeannette Knight's family. On Sept. 6 they went to daughters Leslie and Marianne Gammon's in East Waterford to celebrate Darlene's 20th birthday.

Dianne was 21 on Sept. 26. Charlie was 67 years old on Sept. 18, and Dianne, who is away at college, came home for a weekend to her mother's, Marianne Gammon, so they could celebrate their birthdays together.

We are pleased to welcome Crystal Hebert Lake back to our neighborhood along with her husband and son. Crystal lived here as a child and has moved a trailer home onto the property formerly belonging to her parents.

Charlie and Jeannette Knight's great grandson, Christopher Michael Henderson, hit the front page in the Advertiser Democrat recently with a picture taken at the Oxford County Fair.

Marilyn VanHorn visited Lorraine Mills Wednesday and brought a pretty vase of flowers. Other visitors this week were Crystal Lake and Jean Grover.

Jean has been there always when I've needed her and during this illness she brought food, a bag of goodies, knit me some bed socks and walked my dog.

The season of affirmation has departed and the season of contemplation has come. I feel an urgency to gather in all the loveliness of the blazing days and star-filled nights to keep forever.

There are many things to do before the cold days set in, but it's so easy to put them off. I don't want to miss the beauty of the countryside or the moonlight dipping in the pond. It is good to be in such a place at such a time. Problems vanish from the mind and sorrows steal away.

In the morning, drifting mist, like smoking incense, hangs upon the air. There is fun in discovery, as you work through the day.

It was lovely at that hour; dew sparkled upon the grass, hung in crystal jewels upon the trees; a cobweb became a marvel of shimmering beauty. Only the tops of the tallest trees were touched by the sunlight.

October, the chemist of months, is coming, glowing and chuckling, saying, "I'm the mad scientist of calendars and so it's all over for the trees."

October brings frost to tinge the night air and steal chlorophyll from the leaves, which was so welcome in the spring.

Then come colors in the woods. Color along the rivers. Color in the shrubs. They blend, clash, catch the breezes, and ripple; catch the sunlight and glow.

All this beauty conceals the decay. Leaves die and soon will fall; to be trampled and washed away. Doctor of chemistry has done its shining red and yellow trick again. It has killed summer. And even though it has made us a year older, we all say it is beautiful. It colors its deed so artistically that we welcome it.

I was in Bethel for a couple of days this week to visit with a classmate, Sylvia Grover Laxton. It was nice to see her and we reminisced on many people and things of our school days of so long ago. Rena Curtis had a big family gathering at her home over last weekend. She and Dorothy Curtis visited me last Friday.

State's agriculture boss to speak to Republicans

Bernard Shaw, Maine's commissioner of agriculture since 1987, will be the keynote speaker at the October meeting of the Oxford County Republican Committee.

Commissioner Shaw will address agricultural issues of both local and state importance and report on the work of the Department of Agriculture.

With an extensive background in Maine agriculture, Commissioner Shaw was a broccoli and potato grower in Aroostook County for over 23 years and has served on many public service boards within the agricultural community.

Members of the general public are invited to attend the Republican meeting, which will be held Tuesday, Oct. 10, at the South Paris Fire Hall. A social hour will begin at 6 p.m., with a potluck supper starting at 7 p.m. Commissioner Shaw will speak directly after the dinner.

The Oxford County Republicans are also sponsoring a booth at the Fryeburg Fair this week; visitors to the fair may stop by and learn more about the group's Brenda Eddy, of Central Maine Power, will present her popular Microwave seminar on Wednesday, Oct. 4, 7-9 p.m., at Telstar High School. She covers useful information on how to get the most from this versatile kitchen appliance, and prepares delicious foods, which are sampled by the class.

Attorney Gordon Gillies will cover the basics of Wills and Probate in his seminar on Wednesday, Oct. 11, 7-9 p.m., at Telstar. His program this year will include information on Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care, a method similar to Living Wills.

'Missing' autos returned

Motorists going by Bethel Auto Sales last Friday were startled to see the normally crowded lot devoid of any cars or trucks. Judy Barker said she had people stop in to ask if the Barkers—the owners of the popular used car business—had gone into bankruptcy. Also, she said, she had cars—even a school bus—using the wide lot for making U-turns on Rte. 2.

By this week the lot was crowded with cars again. The mysterious disappearance of the cars and trucks—and their equally mysterious re-appearance—was simply a matter of precaution. The Barkers were having their new garage spray painted and didn't want to get any paint on the automobiles. When the painting was finished, the cars were brought back.

The cars were taken down the road and parked on Ruel Swain's property while the painting took place. Despite the fact that they were not on display, Brad Barker managed to sell one of the landlocked cars to a buyer who came down from Auburn to get a car for his son.

The new garage is almost complete, the Barkers said.

CONSUMER GUIDES AVAILABLE FROM SEN. COHEN'S OFFICES

U.S. Senator Bill Cohen has made available in his six Maine offices the latest edition of the "Consumer Information Catalog."

The catalog lists nearly 200 useful publications designed to save consumers money, including some on health and safety, jobs, food and nutrition, money management and federal programs.

Among the guides listed in the pamphlet are "The Mortgage Money Guide," "Health Insurance for People with Medicare," "How to Buy Surplus Property from the Defense Department" and "Getting Fit Your Way."

"It is a pleasure to make this information available to people in Maine," Sen. Cohen said. "It should be of interest to anyone who wants to be an educated consumer."

Copies are available free from Sen. Cohen's state offices, located in Portland, Bangor, Lewiston, Augusta, Biddeford and Presque Isle.

Agnes Gray School

By MARTA CLEMENTS

Our candy bar sales are off to a great beginning. More are on order, so there will be plenty for everyone.

News from our classrooms: The Kindergarten classes are learning the letter "A", both lower and upper case, and the long "a" sound. Their workshop for learning letter "A" will involve the use of clay. They are finishing up their books about themselves and will bring them home soon. In science they are bringing in "pets in a jar." These pets consist of little creatures that are kept for one day, then released back into the wild. So far creatures brought in are spiders, crickets, salamanders, toads, worms and caterpillars.

Mrs. Loper's 1st-graders are continuing units on apples. They celebrated Johnny Appleseed's birthday with apple crowns, tracing his journey across the U.S., planting apple seeds on a map and reading about his life. The class is collecting all kinds of things about apples and things with apples on them. Mrs. Loper is willing to take any donations about apples that are available. She can be reached at the Legion Memorial School, 674-2871.

Mrs. Brown, our former Kindergarten teacher, is volunteering and helping the 1st-graders with their math on Tuesday afternoons. They are doing free exploration activities with pattern blocks, unifix cubes, geoboards and dot charts. In reading, the class has just finished their first class big book, "At the Circus." The book tells all about the things we see at the circus.

Mrs. Perham's 2nd-graders are preparing for their annual trip to Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway. This is part of the science and health curriculum and serves to familiarize the children with the hospital. If they ever have to be hospitalized it may not be so frightening to them. Last week's special person was Lindsay Newell and she invited Mr. Carl Brooks to visit as her special guest. Mr. Brooks brought his famous dancing dolls, which delighted the whole class. Lindsay's mother also delivered two special treats. She brought Lindsay a bouquet of flowers and she served cookies to the whole class. This week's person-of-the-week is Eric Thorpe.

Mr. Burke's 3rd-graders are learning about the community in social studies. They are learning about jobs done in the community and relating this to jobs done in the classroom. The class is setting up business/jobs in the classroom. This week's fairy tale is "Puss in Boots."

Mr. Litchfield's 4th-graders are beginning their study of electricity in science.

They are learning the basic circuits and are setting up series and parallel circuits. This is always a favorite activity. In math they are beginning their individualized programs. Our volunteer, Eileen Mowatt, helps out during the math period. There is always plenty to do; help children, correct papers and help keep the records straight.

My 5th-graders have started reading "James and the Giant Peach" for their third book report. They are making murals about this and about "The Castle in the Attic," which I am reading to them. They have also created a mural covering the things they learned about World War II in social studies class. Mrs. Deegan's 6th-graders, in Norway, have answered our letters, so our correspondence was enjoyed and it is now our turn to reply. We are learning how to use quotation marks in our min-

English lessons done the first thing each morning.

Mr. Koch's 6th-graders are studying legumes and nodules and nitrogen fixing bacteria in science. Bean plants have been sampled under the microscope and sketches have been produced. Several posters have been created for their "Books we have read" bulletin board, including "Island of the Blue Dolphin," which Mr. Koch is reading to the class.

Mr. Art Turner, our science coordinator, visited our weekly teachers' meeting to explain the status of the science committee's work and to tell us what progress has been made regarding the new health curriculum. Our CAP program (drug and alcohol abuse prevention) and current health program will remain in place with a few adaptations and additions.

Saturday, Sept. 23, Joe Vatcher got back home; he had taken Marge to Nova Scotia. Monday, Sept. 25, Joe went to Massachusetts to bring his sister, Fannie Whitten, for a visit for several days. So glad to hear from Mary Smith, who is back home. She has had two hip surgeries; she is doing just great.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Allen are home after a much-needed vacation to Montana, enjoying the sights and a lot of visiting.

Callers have been Joe Vatcher, Joe Kalinowski, Elizabeth Knight, Howard Anderson.

Don't forget the dance at West Summit, Oct. 14; music by the "Old Parisians" 8-12 p.m.; a supper downstairs, 6:30-8 p.m.; entertainment upstairs, 8:30-8 p.m. Heart and cancer donation for the dance, $4; Roberts benefit, donation for the supper, $4.

There will be a dance at West Paris Grange Hall Oct. 7; music by Richard Felt and Company; prizes and homemade pies.

What beautiful weather. It is cool early in the morning but is sure turns off great. Hope they get good weather for Fryeburg Fair.

Sunday, Sept. 24, I went to a meeting of the North Woodstock Community Club at the "Pinhook" Chapel. There was a lot to discuss. I guess getting heat comes first.

October is Family Health Month

The American Academy of Family Physicians has designated the month of October as "Family Health Month." This is a good time to evaluate the family's health in the areas of:

Physical Fitness: Activities that burn calories and are considered safe include walking, gardening, bicycling, and swimming. Adults should consider building up to a level of at least three 30 minute periods of exercise a week.

Nutrition: Consume just enough calories to meet body demands, especially if overweight. Reduce the intake of saturated fat, and eat more fruits and vegetables. Cut back on salt and refined sugar.

Home Hazards: Protect the family by storing cleaning products and medicines safely.

Health Screening and Checkups: Have your blood cholesterol, blood sugar, and blood pressure checked. Schedule periodic checkups with your physician. Be sure family immunizations are up to date.

Dental Care: Brush and floss teeth daily. Make certain family members are visiting the dentist regularly.

MRS. WHEELER'S 5th Grade class at Crescent Park School spent some time last week helping Mrs. Salway's kindergartners write stories about apples. Above, Jeremy Bancroft and Crystal White help Frankie Westleigh with his story. (Photo by Jeanne Boelsma)

AT LAST WEDNESDAY'S OPEN HOUSE, at Crescent Park School, Ethel Ward, a retired Bethel teacher, visited in the 1st Grade classroom of Mrs. Otero-Otero. Mrs. "Double-O" is the teacher of Mrs. Ward's great-grandson, Seth Howe. Mrs. Ward, who retired 20 years ago, said the school looks nicer now, and more colorful, and looks as if it would be more fun for the students. (Photo by Jeanne Boelsma)

East Bethel

By MYRA FOSTER

Guests last week of Mrs. Floribel Haines were Mrs. Vivian Barlow, of East Andover; Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Haines, of West Bethel. Mr. and Mrs. Alan Wentworth, of Kennebunk, were recent guests at the Bartlett Homestead. Mrs. Fay Kimball and Mrs. Flossie Bernier were in Rumford one day last week. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Tyler returned home last weekend from visiting relatives in Yarmouth. Mrs. Harry Maxwell, of West Lebanon, N.Y., was my guest last week. We visited Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. Rick Westleigh, in Rumford Corner, on the occasion of Linda Westleigh's birthday. Mr. and Mrs. Dan Stearns, Cory and Erin, of Rumford Point, and Mr. and Mrs. Roland Stearns, and Albert Foster were there, too. Mr. and Mrs. John Foster, of Dover, visited us one day last week, also. Mrs. Jo Tyler, of Dixfield. Mrs. Cindi Cox and Miss Chick Fritz Morris came over Sept. 21 to play cards. Mrs. Harry Maxwell and I went over to Bridgton to take Mrs. Clara Hamlin out to lunch Sept. 21. Mrs. Harry Maxwell returned home to West Lebanon on Friday, Sept. 22. Mrs. Richard Stearns took me to Rumford to see Dr. Kim and have my eyes tested. They are coming along fine, thank God.

Mrs. Adele Kimball Springer, of Myrtle Beach, S.C., and Mrs. Isobel Boyce, of Gloucester, visited Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hastings recently. The date for Leonard Tyler's surgery on his throat has been changed to Oct. 5. Not much news this week. It is getting to be that time of year when all summer people head for home and schools. The only news that I have is that Mrs. Clara Hamlin, of South Waterford, picked me up Sept. 24 and we met Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stearns in Rumford Corner and

CUBMASTER NEEDED

Cub Scout Pack #565, of Bethel, desperately needs a cubmaster—can be male or female. The right person for the job should like kids and scouting; otherwise, no experience is necessary. The scouts could fold without a cubmaster. If interested, call Flossie Bernier, at 875-3704.

we all went to a camp on Aziscohos Lake for a few days of fishing.

CPS Discoveries

By TAMMY MILLS

The 3rd and 4th grades have been taking SRA tests this week. The SRA is a standardized nationally normed test that examines language and math concepts. Teachers use the scores to see how to best help students. It is one of the many criteria used for placement in special services such as FOCUS or Chapter I. Test scores are not the absolute determination of a child's ability or intelligence and should not be regarded as such. Teachers do not compare student scores, classroom scores or district scores. We use testing as one of many tools to help us determine how to best facilitate a student's learning.

The 3rd graders had a wonderful learning experience hiking through Grafton Notch to Table Rock. The trip was postponed from last week due to rain. They had the help of Mr. Melzer, a park ranger, to assist them with their "hands-on" experiences with environments. Debbie Germain and Phyllis Buchanan, Chapter I instructors, are beginning this year's classes with armloads of new literature and math manipulatives. Students have begun devouring their first books with enthusiasm.

Many of us have a chrysalis waiting to hatch into a monarch butterfly in our classrooms. We have also been studying caterpillars and monarchs in conjunction with a book, "A New Friend for Morganfield." The author, Ann Hobart, will be speaking to our students about her experiences as a writer to kick off Young Author's Day on March 22. We are all looking forward to a day to celebrate our writing with authors and illustrators from all over the state, who will be giving student workshops.

Please attend the CPS craft fair on Saturday, Oct. 28, 9 a.m.-4 p.m., in the Telstar cafeteria. There will be local crafters displaying and selling their wares. Student crafters will also be involved. Food and face-painting will be available. A great way to shop early for Christmas and to support CPS.

Hugo came and went without doing much damage. I understand that some places were without lights. Tomorrow is the first day of October and Sept. 29 was one of those rare fall days with lovely weather, beautiful blue sky with here and there a lazy cloud drifting along and the foliage has enough color to make the trees wonderful to behold.

Friday, Sept. 29, Frankie and Theresa brought home a little puppy and Theresa loves animals so after she found out Mama Cat wouldn't harm her puppy (Sandy) if Sandy left the kitten alone Theresa calmed down. Of course, Mama Cat arched up her back and hissed the first few times Sandy got near Mama Cat's kittens.

Saturday, Sept. 29 was a bleak afternoon although the morning wasn't too bad, but windy. Sunday, Frank's sister Bobby and Eddie Peavey rode down from Rangley and said that it split snow until the New Hampshire border coming through Errol, N.H. Ernest and Alberta Angevine came for a visit and were able to talk to Bobby and Eddie. Bobby and Ernest's sister Carrie were friends in school.

Monday, Kristin and I made a quick trip to Berlin, N.H., and shopping. Coming home we could see the top of Mt. Washington was all white. I was still taking groceries out of the car when Pastor David and Evelyn Larson drove in. Evelyn Hilborn also dropped in. Tuesday Jean Grover stopped by and Sept. 22 Eddie Smith came by for a minute. Friday we had 16 youngsters from a nursery school with teachers and helpers come by for a field trip of the orchard. Friday afternoon Wilfred and Kim Gibson, of Lewiston, stopped by on their way to Vermont. They were going to a photographers' convention.

Thanks to good neighbors and our own garden, Kristin and I have made quite a lot of relish for our own use and to give for Xmas presents to other members of the family. It is my mother's recipe and we use it on hotdogs, hamburgers, with baked beans, etc.

Ernest and Alberta Angevine went to Farmington Fair Sept. 19. Karen Bean and Don Bean, with son Matthew, went to Cisco and Poncho's in observance of Karen's birthday, Sept. 21. Sept. 23, Karen's brother, Eric Gunderman and family, of Lovell, sister Ellen Williams and family, of Bridgton, and Dr. Melvin and Mrs. Gunderman, of Wellesley, Mass., came to Bean's to celebrate Karen's and Eric's wife Connie's birthdays. Ellen baked two cakes and the others brought for a potluck meal.

Alberta Angevine and Betty Blake were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Elliot, of Rumford Point. Evelyn Hilborn, Frances Farnum, Mona Lowe and Mildred Thomas went, Sept. 21, to Thomaston and Fort Clyde. They ate at a restaurant on the outskirts of Rockland. Sept. 22, Evelyn Hilborn and Mildred Thomas went to Norway on business and had lunch at Bonanza. Sept. 23, Sarah and Jessica Coolidge went shopping with Evelyn Hilborn at Gorham, N.H. Evelyn Hilborn, Frances Farnum, of Bethel, Bertha Flanders, of Locke Mills, and Louie Coffin, of West Paris, went to Lyndenville, Vt., shopping and had dinner. They came back through Littleton, N.H.

Sheri Cordova and daughter Tana have returned from Portals, N.M., and are now living with Sheri's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Angevine.

Grace Douglass went Sept. 24 to Bristol to visit her mother, Alice Taylor, and sister, Ruby Hanley, and came back Sept. 27. Alice Taylor and family lived on this road in the house where Littlefields now live. Alice is now in her 90s, and even though she wasn't feeling that well Grace said her mother was "happy as a tick."

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your daily life.

The classic definition of an optimist is a person who calls half a glass of water "half-full," while the classic pessimist would call it "half-empty." The optimist chooses to focus on the fullness of life, while the pessimist chooses to focus on the emptiness. The curious thing, of course, is that both are right. The glass of water is both half-full and half-empty. The optimist and pessimist differ not so much on what facts they see as how they choose to interpret those facts.

I believe that it is generally better to focus on the fullness of life, to see our glass as half-full rather than as half-empty. A positive mental attitude enhances our zest for living. It makes us more loving toward others and better able to cope with difficulties and setbacks. It can even help us overcome some illnesses and lead a longer and healthier life. For all these reasons, I would prefer to see life as half-full, rather than as half-empty.

At the same time, I have a grudging suspicion of people who seem too relentlessly optimistic, who seem to totally ignore the emptiness of life. There is a name for people who seem too shallow in their optimism. It is " Pollyanna," named for the character in children's literature. An attitude that totally denies the emptiness of life is no better than one that totally denies its fullness.

There are two concepts in religion that are related to this contrast of half-full and half-empty. They are judgment and grace. Judgment emphasizes the emptiness of life; grace emphasizes its fullness. When people get too smug and self-righteous, the role of religion is to remind them that the glass is half-empty—that society is imperfect, flawed, unjust and uncaring. Thus the Old Testament prophet Amos proclaimed, "Let judgment roll down as waters and righteousness as a mighty stream."

But when we feel most lost and alone,

Bob's grandmother, Ethel Ward, attending the open house at Ethel Bisbee School. Ethel taught at Ethel Bisbee many years, retiring 20 years ago; this was her first visit to the school since her retirement.

Another day to know the love of family and friends, another day to make amends before life's journey ends, another day to realize the joy that life can be, another day to thank the Lord for blessings given.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Morin

Notes from the Woodstock Historical Society

Following is a description of a device of the modern age:

They were standing before a small computer. Michael touched a switch in the back, another in the front and the machine hummed softly. A few strokes on the typewriterlike keyboard and a series of coded instructions appeared on the television screen above the keys. Angel Milan

The role of religion is to remind us of life's fullness, which appears as grace of lives. The idea of grace was found as early as the first chapter of Genesis, when God sees all that has been made and that it is very good. Grace is found in Isaiah, who proclaims, "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of one who brings good tidings." To be complete, religion must balance judgment and grace, fullness and emptiness.

So. Woodstock

By OLIVE R. DAVIS

Mr. and Mrs. James Whittemore, Livermore Falls, had dinner with her sister, Esther Davis, Monday.

Olive Davis went with Bertha Benoit to Augusta Sunday afternoon to attend the Silver Tea held at the Augusta Grange home. The awards were given out to the lecturers for their work from September 1988 to 1989. We both had a third prize (yellow ribbon). Bertha's was on talent contest and Olive's was on a complete program. The hall was well filled with lecturers from all over the state.

Neil Tibbets has arrived at his destination, Ft. Leonard Wood, at Missouri, where he will begin his training in the U.S. Army.

The Willing Workers meeting has been changed to Oct. 12 to be held with Olive Davis at 7 p.m. We hope many can come.

Dan O'Rourke has been building over chimneys on the place where Jim Mclon lives. They have about finished there now.

A heavy frost hit the fields in South Woodstock Sunday night. Curtis Hill reported only a spotty frost on higher ground. The gardens were cleared of their produce pronto. Now the remains must be carried away if we do a good job.

Franklin Grange is inviting in some of the grade children on Oct. 16 at their meeting at 7:30 p.m. for a program, we hope they will enjoy it.

Oct. 2 the past Masters were to fill the offices. Penona was to be entertained Oct. 3.

Franklin Grange was catering to the Senior Citizens that same week.

Conferees praise work of housing committee

"Taking Steps to Affordable Housing," a public discussion, drew state and town officials, developers and educators to Bethel last week. Sponsored by the Bethel Affordable Housing Committee and local businesses, the conference focused on possible solutions to the housing dilemma.

HUD representative Louis Stack identified the organization of the Bethel Affordable Housing Committee as a successful and critical basic step. Mr. Stack described the need for a local committee to educate the community "to convince the town it needs affordable housing, and show doubters there's not only a need but a way."

Peter Roche, director of development for the Maine State Housing Authority, commended the Bethel committee for "being exactly the kind of effort we want to facilitate."

Statistics from the state housing authority indicated that less than 12 percent of the starter home market can afford to buy a home. In Oxford County, only 69 percent of the people can afford a medium priced home.

Valerie Lamont, director of real estate research and education at the University of Southern Maine, said that affordable housing has now become an economical, political and social issue. "Anyone making from $23,000 to $30,000 a year cannot afford a home in Bethel and surrounding communities," Ms. Lamont noted.

Dennis Lajoie, representative of the Maine Department of Community and Economic Development, urged support of a housing bond issue on the Nov. 7 ballot. The proposal includes funds for loans to municipalities to obtain land for affordable housing. He explained the community block grants would allow towns to develop economically by helping them to create jobs, extend water and sewer systems and acquire land on which 100 percent of homes can be for low or moderate income people. Applications for these grants will be sent to 492 municipalities in October, with decisions finalized by the end of December.

Speakers at the conference stressed that Bethel's Affordable Housing Committee is a valuable asset in facilitating information flow on available resources. The committee can identify the community's needs, work with the local planning board and coordinate efforts with local developers. Committee Chairwoman Marcia Denison indicated there is interest among its members to remain active; however, an increase in active support is vital. Anyone interested in becoming involved in the Affordable Housing Committee should contact the Bethel Town Office.

Bingham trust fund brings health experts to Bethel for symposium

An old Bethel connection brought 100 physicians and other health services researchers to town last week. The occasion for the visit was a two-day symposium on health-services research sponsored by the Bingham Consortium for Health Research, in Boston.

The consortium is named in honor of William Bingham II. In 1911 Mr. Bingham became a patient at Dr. John G. Gehring, of Bethel. He went on to help finance the construction of the Bethel Inn and to support a number of medical programs in the Boston area.

The Bingham Consortium for Health Research was established in 1988 through a grant from the Bingham Program at the New England Medical Center in Boston. The purpose of that grant, which is administered through the Human Services Development Institute at the University of Southern Maine, is to "support the coordination and further development of public health and medical care research and analysis."

The symposium was initially a joint effort of U.S.M., the Foundation for Biomedical Research, the Maine Health Information Center, the Maine Medical Center and the Maine Department of Human Services. Since the formation of the consortium, participation has broadened considerably to include many of the organizations that contribute to health research in Maine.

Last week's symposium was held at the Bethel Inn.

ABOUT 40 RUNNERS turned out at Gould Academy Saturday morning for a fun run with Joan Benoit Samuelson (hidden in the pack). Could coach Kirk Seigel (left of center in dark long-sleeved shirt and long pants) was first to finish the 3.14-mile cross-country course. Mrs. Samuelson was the first woman finisher. The run was the kick-off activity for a host of events at the school's annual Alumni Weekend.
